'Connecting people and places - FASICONNECT'

PRESS RELEASE

On Friday September 8, 2019 FASICONNECT Board took a position to firmly condemn the recent unfortunate xenophobic attacks on foreign nationals and their businesses.

The Board joins its voice to the condemnation of ongoing violence in South Africa against foreign nationals. This unrest is against the spirit of Africa, and counter-productive to the decades of work done by African leaders and well-meaning organisations to unite the continent.

FASICONNECT is a proudly African company operating from Johannesburg, South Africa since 2010. We serve the African continent through our service with support in linguistic, translation, interpretation and cultural events for businesses, academic institutions and investors in diverse industries on the continent. We see no border, tribe or race. Africans are part of a big family and unity will always be our strength.

These attacks on foreign nationals call for urgent concerted measures by the South African government and the regional bodies. We calling at the same time for all African in South Africa and other African countries to remain calm and disengage from acts of violence as they voice out their grievance.

Several business offices and stores in South Africa, Nigeria and Zambia are still closed today unable to open due to protest action, and extensive damage has been done to several supermarkets impacting the lives of millions of law-abiding people and businesses. FASICONNECT offices in Johannesburg will remain closed until further notice to ensure its employees and consultants are safe with their families.

South Africa is a multicultural society and should keep on promoting interaction among people of different backgrounds. The country constitution protects the rights of all people living in it, South Africans and foreigners alike. The Government and law enforcement must act proactively to protect life and businesses.

FASICONNECT's Board has announced his intention to join the nonprofits and businesses collective action plan to share its concern about the security of professional foreign migrants and their businesses in the country.
